WHITE OAKS

A young son of Jap. Cox and wife was seriously shot in the head by a sister still younger about ten days ago, using a bird gun carelessly. It standing outside the door. The all entered the boy's head just above the eye coming out over the ear. It was found necessary to remove the ball of the eye and the boy was later taken to El Paso where this was done. He is now rapidly recovering under the care of Dr. Whitacre. Moral: Buy your kid a gun for Christmas present and accustom him to the use of it and there won't be so many of him in the world to make life unsafe.

The Woman's Club put on a very enjoyable dance at their hall last Tuesday night. The Club has lately calsonined their rooms throughout which makes a vast improvement in its appearance. New curtains have also been artistically draped over the fine mosaic front windows in striking contrast with balance of the fine weather brown front.

Mr. Tovote, a Phelps-Dodge man is here looking under and over our coal measures. This company at divers and sundry times in years past have been sending their men here for the same purpose and the people have always taken them around showing them the wonders of the camp and surrounding country and paying the bills, while nothing has come of it. This time they are letting Mr. Tovote hunt alone. Perhaps now there may be something done. Wouldn't it surprise us to hear the toot of even a coal engine?

Mrs. S. E. Barber came up Saturday from her Three Rivers ranch to look after her property, but put in most of her time while here trying to recover from her ride up on our highly ventilated but pungent, stage coach.

Thanksgiving was duly observed here, not so much in giving thanks perhaps as in getting outside of the good things left over from last year.

The Wellses, up at their mountain ranch had a regular boiled dinner of cabbage and taters. Of course there was the usual well done bird of stately mien as a thank offering with all the condiments and fixins to match, and around the table was gathered all the big kids and little kids of the family from near and far, even from the Ruidoso.

Bob Taylor's kept open house for all comers but the day being cold and windy nobody came, so they too sat down to a family dinner of hog and hominy with the usual bird or two thrown in together with a lot of things that looked mighty good to eat.

The Rudisells sat down this year all by their lonesome, at a table with not much between them but a tame, baked hen and a pumpkin pie and the Prices did the same.

Wayne Van Schoyke and his'n took each other by the hand just as they should have done in life's bright heyday and went over and smuggled in around the table with the old folks.

The Spences gobbled in a gobbler or two and loaded up their table with the best the country from California to New Mexico affords, and then went down to Carrizozo and brought up about all their folks to help surround it.

Ed, Lee and family spread a regular feast and invited all the other Lees from Capt. John, the patriarch down to the youngest and tiniest kiddie of the bunch. They also managed to squeeze in the three lemons on the side. Last but not least came Sullivan.

Ed, Queen's didn't make any spread at all, but took their serene ly and thankfully at home.

Charlie Mayer and family with the Weightmans went over across the gulch and dined at the Littel caravansary and found about everything the heart and an alert appetite could desire. While Paul Mayer and his good wife sat down to a dinner of their own home making—things that just hit the right spot—and asked for nothing better.

Dr. Whitacre's took cream of wheat and other sanitary food with a mulshion of fresh milk right from the cow.

The Joneses made a stew of "Domestic Pets" with candy and nuts on the side.

Judge Hewitt declined several invitations out, on account of the weather or something, and roasted his shins before his own hearth-
